

Staff

HRWF Staff

Willy Fautré, Director and Co-founder

Willy was an active advocate for human rights in Communist countries during the Cold War. He has extensive experience in freedom of religion or belief around the world. He is a member of the International Consortium on Law and Religious Studies. He has written many articles in university journals, held lectures in academic conferences, testified before inter-state organizations and given interviews to international media.

Elisa Van Ruiten, Project Manager & Gender Specialist

Elisa has a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from San Francisco State University, and a Master of Laws (LL.M.) in International Law and International Relations from the University of Kent, Brussels School of International Studies. Her focus is in women's rights and trafficking, and she has over ten years of experience running projects in both the private and public sectors.

Lea Perekrests, Deputy Director

Lea has a degree in International Relations, with a minor in Religious Studies from Connecticut College. She has professional experience working in academia and with NGOs in the U.S. and Europe. She focuses specifically on foreign policy and peace-building with a particular interest in the Middle East and Central Asia.

HRWF Network of Experts

HRWF's network of experts are independent consultants. They cannot be held accountable for the choice of policies of HRWF, a prerogative of the board of directors.

Zsuzsa-Anna FERENCZY (Brussels): Human Rights in China and in North Korea

Hans NOODT (Netherlands): Freedom of Religion or Belief

Alfiaz VAIYA (Brussels): Racism and Xenophobia

Dominic ZOEHRER (Vienna): Freedom of Religion or Belief