More than 30 Baha'i graves razed by Iranian authorities at Tehran mass gravesite

BIC (05.03.2024)— More than 30 new graves of deceased Baha'is at a Tehran mass grave have been razed by the Iranian authorities, with grave markers removed, and bulldozers used to flatten the resting places. The work had also been carried out to make it seem that the area did not contain any new graves.

Iran's government has used this site to forcibly bury Baha'is for more than two years—without allowing families to be present or respecting Baha'i funeral practices. Desecrating grave sites has been a constant feature of the Iranian government's 45-year campaign of systematic persecution of the Baha'is and follows years of harassment at the cemetery.

But razing these fresh gravesites represents an unprecedented and inhumane attack on the Baha'i community in Iran.

The remains of these Baha'is had been interred only in recent months, whereas past destructions of Baha'i cemeteries targeted sites that were several decades old.

"It's almost Nawruz and while families who have recently lost their loved ones are still grieving their passing, the Iranian authorities impose fresh horrors on them, proving, ultimately, their utter inhumanity," said Simin Fahandej, Representative of the Baha'i International Community (BIC) to the United Nations in Geneva. "They are destroying the graves of people who died only in the past few months, even just a few weeks ago, people whose memories are still fresh in the minds and hearts of their loved ones. No religious or cultural norm, in any part of the world, supports this kind of cruel desecration. This is cultural cleansing, through the destruction of graves and cemeteries, aiming to erase Baha'i identity from the consciousness of the Iranian people.

"Before the 1979 Islamic Revolution, Tehran's Baha'i community owned an 80,000 square meter cemetery at Khavaran, and a 1.5 million square meter cemetery property at Kabirabad. Both properties were confiscated in the 1980s by the new Islamic Republic and at least 15,000 graves were demolished at Khavaran.

A smaller 17,000 square meter property known as Golestan Javid—adjacent to a mass grave of thousands of political prisoners executed by the government in the 1980s—was then given to the Baha'i community. But now the Baha'is also have limited access to this site. Ministry of Intelligence agents took over the cemetery in 2021 and have made it increasingly difficult for the Baha'is to use their own cemetery.

In 2022 the agents began to forcibly bury deceased Baha'is in narrow plots that were a part of the mass grave site. Iranian Baha'is were appalled at this effort to use the remains of their loved ones to erase the history of the mass grave site containing the loved ones of many other Iranians.

Baha'is across Iran have suffered repeated violations of their funeral and burial rights since the Islamic Revolution—part of a systematic plan to “block” the “progress and development” of the Baha'i community in every area of life. Reports over the decades have also emerged of cemetery desecrations in Shiraz \(link is external\), Sanandaj \(link is external\), and many other locations.

“In Iranian culture, cemeteries and places of burial are sacred as they show not only respect to the dead and their families but also as places that connote identity and culture. Through this unprecedented act of utter cruelty, Iran’s government has shown its mercilessness to those who are grieving, and even to the dead, with no regard to what is sacred,” Ms. Fahandej added. “All Iranians are suffering from many economic and social challenges—which also impact the Baha'is who cannot bury their loved ones in peace even as they are targeted by intensified and brutal new forms of persecution in recent months. Dozens of Baha'i families must bear the heartbreak of seeing the remains of their loved ones trampled on by those very authorities that should be protecting, not punishing, its citizens. The Iranian government must end its cultural cleansing of the Baha'i community, immediately, an act which further undermines its own reputation and credibility in the eyes of the world.”

Christian convert imprisoned and exiled by Islamic Republic 'died of heart attack'

Article 18 (22.02.2024) - A Christian convert who had been imprisoned and exiled by the regime has been found dead aged 37.

Ebrahim Firouzi's family told mourners at his burial today (Thursday, 22 February) that “he died of a heart attack” on Tuesday, 20 February.

Paying tribute to Ebrahim, Article18 Director Mansour Borji, said: "Ebrahim's untimely death is devastating. We have followed his case since he was arrested by the Iranian regime for going to a house-church and for being in possession of Bibles. "The Islamic Republic of Iran had sentenced Ebrahim for 'acting against national security', but nothing could have been further from the truth.

'Faceless victims: rights violations against Christians in Iran'

Article 18 (19.02.2024) - Article18's newly released annual report focuses on the many victims whose names and faces remain unknown, due to fear that publication of their cases may worsen their plight.

"Despite a comparable number of Christians being arrested in 2023 as in previous years – 166 arrests were documented in 2023, compared to 134 in 2022 – fewer names and faces could be publicised," notes the report, 'Faceless Victims: Rights Violations Against Christians in Iran', released today in collaboration with Open Doors, CSW and Middle East Concern.

Arrests came in waves in 2023, the report notes, with "just a handful reported prior to June, then over 100 within the next three months, before a further rash of arrests at Christmas.

For Iranian converts claiming religious persecution, European courts require proof of faith

Religion news (19.02.2024) - The tattoo spelling "GOD" sits prominently between the man's eyebrows, a letter disappearing with every furrowed expression.

The green ink, which draws sideways glances from nearby tables as Arash sips his cappuccino, would swiftly get him arrested or killed back home, apostasy being a crime of the highest order. But the British courts were not so convinced of his newfound religious beliefs.

Arash, an Iranian who converted from Islam to Christianity and sought asylum in the U.K., has had a difficult time proving he is really Christian. Immigration officials were skeptical when they read his application and saw the pictures of his permanent brow, said Arash, whose name has been changed by request to protect his family members who remain in Iran.

Christian convert facing imprisonment in Iran threatened with deportation from Turkey

Article 18 - (16.02.2024) - A Christian convert who fled Iran in 2013 to escape his impending imprisonment on account of his faith now faces the threat of deportation from Turkey.

Mojtaba Keshavarz Ahmadi, who is 56 years old, was arrested suddenly on 29 January by the Turkish immigration authorities and transferred to a deportation camp in western Turkey, where he remains.

Mojtaba was accused of leaving his city of residence, Düzce, which is near Istanbul, without authorisation – something he denies and for which the Turkish authorities provided no evidence.

Persecution against Christians in Iran continues to worsen

Religion unplugged (09.02.2024) - Iranian Christians continued to face harassment, arrests and imprisonment last year for practicing their faith, according to a report issued on Monday.

The 35-page report, issued by four non-profit organizations advocating for persecuted Christians across the world, found that Christians have been deprived of their right to freely practice their faith.

This lack of religious freedom, the report said, affected both “recognized” Christians of Armenian and Assyrian descent and converts.

Two Iranian Baha’i women face new charges after release

Iran Press Watch (25.02.2024) - Two Iranian Baha’is, Roha Imani and Firoozeh Sultan Mohammadi, were summoned to face new charges following their release from custody in December 2023.

Reports say the Fifth Investigation Branch of Kerman informed both women on February 20 that they are accused of “promotion of the Baha’i faith” and activities deemed inconsistent with the Islamic Sharia law.

Imani and Mohammadi were initially arrested at their homes in Kerman on December 4, 2023, and held in solitary confinement for 17 days before being released on bail.

In the past year, many Baha’is, predominantly women, have been subjected to arrests and imprisonment.

Iranian agents beat Baha’i youth during attack on educational group—and knowledge itself

Iran Press Watch (16.02.2024) - On the morning of 12 February, in the Iranian city of Qaemshahr, a group of young Baha’is had gathered in a private home owned by a Baha’i woman, Maryam Zabihi Zamani, when 15 agents of the Ministry of Intelligence burst in and proceeded to raid the premises in an attack on the simple act of working to acquire knowledge. The young Baha’is were at the home to sit an exam as part of their informal studies in the Baha’i Institute for Higher Education. Iran’s government bars young Baha’is from entering the country’s established universities—forcing Baha’is to meet in private homes and through informal groups to pursue university-level studies.

Baha’i Citizen Rouya Sabet arrested in Shiraz

Iran Press Watch (16.02.2024) - On February 15, Baha'i citizen Rouya Sabet was arbitrarily arrested in Shiraz by IRGC Intelligence agents and transferred to an undisclosed facility.

A source close to her family confirmed Sabet's arrest, revealing to HRANA that IRGC Intelligence is responsible for the apprehension. The source disclosed that Sabet, who had traveled to Shiraz from the UAE on January 4 to care for her elderly parent, was scheduled to return on January 25. However, two days before her planned departure, IRGC Intelligence agents executed a search warrant at her parent's residence.

Baha'i educator Keyvan Rahimian receives nine-year prison sentence

Iran Press Watch (15.02.2024) - Keyvan Rahimian, a Baha'i citizen and lecturer at an online university affiliated with the Baha'i community, has been sentenced to nine years in prison, accompanied by a fine and a six-year deprivation of social rights.

The verdict, issued by Branch 15 of the Tehran Revolutionary Court, outlines a five-year sentence for "educational activities and propagating against Sharia Islam" and a four-year sentence for "assembly and collusion against national security." Alongside the prison term, Rahimian has been prohibited from exercising social rights and ordered to pay a fine.

Iranian Baha'i woman jailed for five years

Iran Press Watch (14.02.2024) - A Baha'i woman was apprehended by agents of the Iranian Ministry of Intelligence on the streets of Shiraz on February 13 and taken to Adel Abad prison to start her prison sentence.

The First Branch of Shiraz Revolutionary Court sentenced Mina Karami to five years in prison after finding her guilty of "deviant educational and propaganda activities contrary to or disruptive of the Sharia of Islam."

She was also given a ten-year deprivation of social rights and a two-year travel ban. Branch 37 of the Court of Appeal of Fars Province later upheld the ruling. Karami's ordeal began in September 2021, when agents of the Shiraz Intelligence Department searched her residence.

Following the search, Karami was summoned to the Intelligence Department for interrogation and arrested. She was later released on bail.

Baha'i Citizen Shahdokht Khanjani faces eleven-year sentence upheld on appeal

Iran Press Watch (09.02.2024) - In the ruling issued on January 27, 2024, Khanjani was sentenced to ten years for "forming groups to act against national security" and one year for "propaganda against the regime." She is also prohibited from joining political/civil/cultural groups and parties, with restrictions on social media activities for two years.

According to Article 134 of the Islamic Penal Code, the ten-year term for the first charge is enforceable.

Initially, the Revolutionary Court of Semnan had sentenced Khanjani to 11 years for the mentioned charges, along with five years for “propagating the Baha’i sect.” On appeal, the latter charge was dropped, as it was deemed inseparable from the charge of “forming groups to act against national security.” Additionally, a fine and a 15-year deprivation of social rights were annulled.

Iran once again ranked among top 10 persecutors of Christians

Article 18 (17.01.2024) - Iran has once again been named among the top 10 worst persecutors of Christians.

Iran ranks in 9th place on the 2024 World Watch List, published today by Article18’s partner organisation, Open Doors International.

Last year Iran ranked in 8th place, but Iran's overall "score" remained the same, meaning its one-place improvement on the list – a return to its 2022 ranking – was a reflection of worsening conditions in another country (namely Sudan), rather than any improvement for Christians inside Iran.
